There are two stories of how Father's Day came to be, both involving women in church services honoring Mothers who wanted to give Dad their due as well.

William Jennings Bryant and Calvin Coolidge were among those who wanted to officially honor Dads with a national holiday, as far back as 1924.

In 1966, Lyndon B. Johnson, through an executive order, designated the third Sunday in June as the official day to celebrate Father's Day. However, it wasn't until 1972, during the Nixon administration, that Father's Day was officially recognized as a national holiday.

Father's Day is celebrated around the world, often on different dates, but in the U.S. and most of Europe on the third Sunday of June.
